in 1860 and lived in the old fort in the northwest corner of town.

Isabelle was baptized and confirmed a member of the Church when eight years old. She attended Church regularly and was taught the principles of the gospel and always lived them. She was assistant secretary in the first Primary organization in this stake. She advanced through all the grades in school at that time and later taught school under William Buys. She always was a good speller and knew the word definitions. As a girl she helped her mother wash and card wool, which was made into quilt batts. She also filled the candle molds for making their candles. She worked in the field with other members of the family and it was there she learned many of the Church hymns, led by her father.

Her parents were neat and particular and she became likewise in all of her work. She worked in many homes, including those of President Hatch, Judge Watson, the Moulton Ranch and the Clotworthy shingle mill. It was at this mill she met John Hicken, whom she later married. Much of their time was spent in the hills and many trips home was on a load of shingles drawn by ox team. They were married January 14, 1885, by President Abram Hatch, in her father's new large sandstone home, which was completed in 1879. They had a big reception following the marriage, serving a hot supper first, and then dancing, along with other entertainment till the early hours of the morning. They received many beautiful gifts: stem crystal, cake plates, dinner sets, silver sugar and tea set, etc. Many of these pieces Isabelle still had when she died and they were handed onto her children.

Their marriage was solemnized in the Logan Temple, November 12, 1890. At that time it required two days to reach there by team, in a white-top buggy. They spent the first six years in Park City and it was there the first two children were born, the second one dying the date of birth.

Upon returning to Heber they bought 20 acres of land in the east part of town, on which was a small log house, which was improved to live in until their new brick home was built. In 1892, John Hicken bought into a meat market business in which he engaged for 18 years. The business was successful and his fair dealing made many life-long friends.

Throughout his life he was active in pioneering and building up Heber Valley, and served four years as a city councilman. Their golden wedding anniversary was held in Janary, 1935, with their many friends and family present. Their family consisted of Mrs. Catherine Rasband, Mrs. Ethel Mabey, Mrs. Lizzie Buell, Irwin T., Mrs. Geneve Smith, and Mrs. Nellie Bennett, and twenty-three grandchildren.

John Henry Hicken died May 25, 1938, age 79, and Isabelle Helen Todd Hicken died January 6, 1947, at the age of 83, at Heber, Utah. Each had lived a good life. They were commonly called "Uncle John" and "Aunt Belle" by their many friends and relatives.
